

The border between the outer and inner skin layers is highly textured like a zipper to maximize the delivery of nutrients.
Good fences make good neighbors.