

Iron oxide pigments migrate and cause clinical artifacts during magnetic resonance imaging scans.
Kitchen fridge testing yields mixed results.