

Applying cosmetics and beauty products directly around a fresh wound prevents the tissue from breathing. Breathing was considered too mainstream.