

A severe throbbing sensation around the site is an indicator of infection rather than a normal healing stage.
Unscheduled biological percussion is rarely a sign of success.