

A study estimated that the prevalence of body piercing, other than of earlobes, in the general adult population in England is 10%.

Corporate boardrooms are significantly more metallic than expected