

Submerging a fresh piercing in pools or natural bodies of water exposes the open wound to pathogens that thrive in warm moisture.
Hosting an underwater metropolis constitutes a zoning violation.