

High-volume tattoo events reduce the time available for proper placement planning on moving skin.
The design remains flawless as long as the arm is never bent again.