

Unlicensed and public environments lack the containment systems necessary to prevent environmental contamination during invasive procedures.

A gentle breeze is the enemy of sterile technique.