

Public settings multiply the variables of dust, touch, and surfaces never designed for invasive procedures. Getting inked beside the nacho cheese dispenser remains a questionable aesthetic choice.