

Universal precautions require treating human blood and specified body fluids as if known to be infectious. Mild plasma exposure warrants fully heroic overreactions.