Unopened ink bottles frequently contain bacteria, indicating the manufactured product itself may be a source of infection. Brand new pigment comes with invisible microscopic roommates.