

Touching a healing modification introduces environmental pathogens directly into an open wound. The heavy glass quarantine dome is the only viable defense against endless curiosity.