

Ear cartilage lacks direct blood supply and heals far more slowly through diffusion than soft tissue.

Waiting for diffusion remains an excellent exercise in extreme patience.