
Surgical steel relies on a passive surface layer to limit nickel release, making it unsuitable for highly sensitive wearers.

A master of passive aggression