

Up to 35% of individuals experience one or more adverse events from piercings beyond the earlobe.
The human ear was tragically not designed as a load-bearing structure.