

Tattoo pigments can migrate from the original puncture site and accumulate permanently within regional lymph nodes. The pigment was last seen fleeing toward the armpit.