

Needles deposit ink particles deep into the dermis.
Pigment particles migrate through the lymphatic system.
Particles become trapped inside macrophage immune cells.
Lymph nodes retain permanent pigment deposits.

Ink actively interferes with immune function in multiple ways.

INK PARTICLES DO NOT REMAIN LOCALIZED.