

Standard commercial general liability policies exclude claims regarding the quality or outcome of body art procedures.
Surviving the waiting room requires an entirely different insurance policy.