

Chemical regulations have entirely banned several widely used blue and green pigments from tattoo inks.
The sky is magenta because the government said so.