

Materials applied to human skin must be transferred from bulk containers to single-use containers.
Industrial logistics eventually require a very tiny spoon.