

Applying thick petroleum-based ointments creates suffocating environments that trap heat and push ink to the surface.

Marinades belong in the kitchen.