

Smothering healing tissue in excess moisture clogs pores and causes the skin to develop small white pimples.
Basting a limb like a holiday roast yields predictably greasy results.