

Even after surface layers completely close, deeper dermal structures require an extended period to remodel around pigment.
The epidermis loves to take credit for work the dermis is still finishing.