

Tattoo needles do not inject liquid like syringes but rather puncture the skin to draw ink downward.
The magical plunger remains an elegant solution to an entirely different problem