

Ink deposited only in the constantly shedding outer layer of skin will quickly fade and vanish.
The perfect disguise lasts exactly until a strong breeze arrives