

The body treats injected pigment as an invader and sends specialized immune cells to carry particles away. The cleanup crew takes extended breaks.