

People are trained to be polite and will say they like designs while privately wondering whether they resemble anatomy. He complimented the shading rather than asking why the dangerous dagger looked exactly like root veg.