
People are trained to be polite and will feign approval while privately worrying about bizarre visual resemblances.

Honesty requires extremely specific prompts.