

Increasing the volume of bioabsorbable ink deposited directly extends the total time required for the body to clear the material.

Bulk application necessitates geological timekeeping.