

In the event a body art studio moves to another location, a new license application must be submitted even if the new location is immediately next door.
Geography is a harsh and unforgiving mistress.