
The continuous movement of a ring prevents the fistula wall from stabilizing in a fresh cartilage piercing.

A swinging pendulum eventually knocks down the whole clock.