

Complex surface placements require examining actual anatomy rather than relying on mood boards.
Human necks completely refuse to collaborate with scrapbooks.