

Swelling alters how jewellery fits during the initial healing period following mechanical injury.
The only possible explanation is that the titanium is evaporating.