

Hydrophobic interactions cause particles to aggregate in the skin and maintain the tattoo.
Solidarity among pigments is surprisingly difficult to break.