

Marketing labels for temporary skin products often outrun their actual chemical performance.
Reading the brochure does not legally bind the molecules.