

When the biodegradable ink fails to dissolve evenly across the skin, the resulting tattoo appears blurry and patchy.
A partial alibi is just a full confession with missing pieces.