

The immune system deploys specialized giant cells to engulf and attempt to remove foreign ink particles.

Sometimes the debris just becomes part of the local scenery.