

An appropriate particle size range is necessary for ensuring aggregation and is no more than about 100 microns in diameter.

Heavy machinery is required for microscopic precision.