

Stacking sterilization pouches flat prevents steam from reaching the paper side and creates air pockets that block sterilization.

The hot plastic smells like productivity.