

Tattoos become permanent when the immune cells completely engulf and permanently trap the pigment particles.

The microscopic village feast lasted for eternity.