Combining a titanium post with a closure made from a different metal causes localized irritation through galvanic corrosion. They simply refuse to get along at social gatherings.