

Surgical steel alloys often contain nickel which triggers common skin sensitivities.

The client prefers to keep their magnetic personality strictly metaphorical.