Commercial grade titanium lacks the strict purity controls required for surgical implant applications.

Refining aerospace debris at home yields highly unpredictable jewellery.