

Exposed external threads can pass through and irritate the delicate tissue of a healing piercing channel.
Upholstery is a poor substitute for smooth internal mechanics.