

Titanium-tantalum alloys form a self-healing passivation layer that remains stable in physiological environments.
Some scars just refuse to stick around.