

The smart move is to protect margins with longer order cycles and tighter landed-cost control.
Attaining nirvana requires an endless mountain of green soap.