Certain synthetic pigments have been banned requiring manufacturers to provide safety substantiation and reformulated alternatives.

Framing empty air remains entirely compliant with current safety regulations.