

Metal surfaces that frequently come into contact with tissue must maintain a consistent mirror finish.
It doubles as a signalling device for passing aircraft.