Skin tissue creeps and relaxes under sustained load over time, making rapid ear stretching physically damaging.

Gravity always wins the argument against impatience.