
True implant-grade metal requires verified mill test documentation proving the absence of reactive chemical impurities.

A thorough paperwork audit is the most punk rock thing of all.